Early Intervention Working Group: Meeting Readout

Meeting	Early Intervention Working Group
Date	24 June 2026
Purpose	Readout of key discussion points, emerging implications and agreed actions.
Classification	OFFICIAL

1. Purpose

The Early Intervention Working Group (EIWG) has been established in response to the Southport Inquiry to support the development of policy and operational options for addressing non-ideological extreme violence (NIEV) and violence-fixated individuals (VFIs). The group will provide a forum for cross-system engagement, testing emerging thinking and supporting advice to ministers.

2. Key discussion points

- Strategic context: Members discussed the evolving threat landscape linked to NIEV and VFIs, including the influence of online environments, complex and overlapping risk factors, and the challenges of defining the cohort in a way that is operationally useful.
- Southport Inquiry implications: The group noted the phase one findings, including concerns around risk ownership, information-sharing and multi-agency coordination. Members also discussed anticipated phase two considerations and the relationship with wider review activity, including the Lord Anderson report.
- Case management and intervention pathways: Members considered how early intervention and case management options could be developed, including potential system reform, alignment with existing structures, and opportunities to involve online and industry partners where appropriate.
- Pilots and evidence-building: The group discussed current and planned pilot activity to test intervention models, identify good practice, and support local innovation through limited funding and evaluation.

3. Emerging implications

- A clear working definition of NIEV will be needed to support consistent operational understanding and to test whether proposed interventions are appropriately targeted.
- Further work is required to clarify risk ownership, escalation routes and the interface with existing safeguarding, Prevent, policing and wider multi-agency structures.
- Pilot activity should be used to build an evidence base on what works, with evaluation designed in from the outset to inform future advice to ministers.

4. Actions

Action	Owner	Detail

Confirm team representation	All participants	Members to provide a short summary of their team's remit where they or their team are not reflected on the circulated representative list.
Provide Terms of Reference feedback	All participants	Members to provide questions or suggested refinements to the EIWG Terms of Reference, either following the meeting or through agreed channels.
Develop working definition of NIEV	T2D	Develop and circulate a proposed working definition of NIEV, including constituent elements, and test its operational usefulness with the group.
Gather feedback on key policy questions	All participants	Members to provide feedback on the key policy questions shared by the NIEV team, highlighting practical considerations, dependencies and areas requiring further clarification to support development of options for the July working group.
Circulate high-level EIWG workplan	NIEV team	NIEV team to circulate a high-level EIWG workplan, informed by feedback on the casework journey, setting out proposed priority topics and sequencing for future working group discussions.

5. Next steps

- The next working group will take place in July and will focus on a small number of priority topics from the case journey.
- The first Advisory Board is expected in July, with substantive policy options or proposals to begin coming forward for the September Advisory Board.
- The taskforce will continue to coordinate with related workstreams, including the analytical working group, online environment working group, operational response working group and practitioner advisory group.
- Members should send any comments, challenge, suggested questions or stakeholder recommendations to the NIEV team.